May 1, 2020

Dear Editors,

We respectfully submit an invited paper for consideration to the International Journal of Technology in Education and Science (IJTES), entitled “Student attitudes toward online education during the COVID-19 viral outbreak of 2020: distance learning in a time of social distance”, as an invited paper in a Special Issue on Online Education during the COVID-19 Viral Outbreak. As the current COVID-19 crisis has urged many schools to move quickly to remote learning, largely online, this manuscript is timely and the result of a survey sent out by students at a small undergraduate university in Wingate, North Carolina, USA. The manuscript assesses student opinions, anxiety, level of readiness, perception of media all related to COVID-19. The findings of this manuscript should be of interest to many readers of this journal and is timely. Please feel free to contact me regarding any changes in format/revisions. This manuscript submitted has not been previously published nor is it under consideration by any other journal. Thank you for consideration of this research article for publication in IJTES.

Sincerely,

Dr. Shem D Unger (on behalf of all authors)

Note: We originally submitted manuscript to IJRES, and have reformatted to IJTES, and include a copy of the email below. For that reason, we left the author names on the manuscript (instead of taking author names off for blind review). If we need to change this please let us know.
